Interpolating completed demolitions in North Philadelphia

The following choropleth map interpolates demolition data in ten neighborhoods in North Philadelphia. The data was acquired through the Pennsylvania Spatial Data Access (PASDA). In addition to the choropleth map, an area centroid map, and continuous surface map were produced. Given the information available, the choropleth map was the most appropriate. Because the number of demolitions was manually inserted, and there was a lack of geographic exactitude, this map distinguishes the varying demolition count by number without precisely identifying the demolition points specifically.
